

Kırkağaç is a town in Manisa district and it has become an important settlement from the antiquity until today. While Kırkağaç, after Anatolia had been "Turkified", appears in Aydinoglu, Saruhanli dynasties and Ottoman Empire's administrative zone, it has been changed as a district that is bound to district of Manisa after the Republican regime. From the 16th century until the 19th century, the district was a passageway and the district itself had been turned into a town in the nineteenth century. Most of the architectural works that is in the town and shape the town's historical panorama, belong to Ottoman architecture and reveal the historical roots. At the same time, especially the residences that belong to minority communities have an important role in shaping this historical phase. With its streets, houses, mosques, shrines, and the socio-cultural architectural patterns, Kirkagac emerges as a reflection of country life style of last periods of Ottoman Empire.
