The performance of implant surgery in the posterior maxillary region often poses a challenge due to insufficient available bone.