Pulmonary alveolar proteinosis (PAP) was first described by Rosen, Castleman and Liebow in 1958 and it is an extremely rare lung disease characterized by accumulation of eosinophilic periodic acid Schiff (PAS)-positive material in the distal airways.