n this study, as a traditional optimization technique Fuzzy logic and as a deterministic optimization technique led function method are employed in the modeling of certain types of microhardness problems in Physics