Ahmet Hamdi Akseki has given a special place on the subject of ethics in his many works including the works of “Islamic Religion” and “Moral Lessons”. In these works, the subjects such as moral philosophy and ethics, Islamic principles of morality, virtue and virtueless, religion and morality, moral of the Prophet, religion and moral relations, happiness and similar concepts and issues are discussed in detail.

Ahmet Hamdi Akseki is a thinker who knows very closely the classic philosophy of Islam and Muslim philosophers. He also has the knowledge of Western philosophers, schools of philosophy, and morality views of the philosophers in the West. He is an important moral thinker who can compare with the moral values of Islam with those of Western views.

According to our thinker, human beings are morally created beings and morality is the prime necessity for being human beings.

As the owner of the human mind, human beings can distinguish the differences between good and evil, and he can show the moral laws of human action and behavior. Akseki refers that the main source of the moral principles is the religion. Every religion has its own code of ethics. According to this approach, morality comes from religion. His understanding of the basic moral values and origin of morality is that of the religion of Islam. He argues that human beings can become as happy people only by following moral principles and maintaining a life of complete.

Keywords: Ahmet Hamdi Akseki, Happiness, Virtue, Ethics, Moral values,