

If we compare the two historical documents from a point of relating human rights we have to give preference to the second one. Even if we can not compare old human rights documents but considerably we can make comparison between these two historical documents to show similarities and differences. The comparison will help us to show the human rights stand and perception of past societies and culture. By comparing the Magna Carta and the Farewell Address of Prophet Muhammad we conclude that, Magna Carta was a document which regulated the share of power between King and other authorities. It is intrinsically limiting the power of the King. On the other hand the Farewell Address of the Prophet was a declaration of the legal, religious and ethic rights and responsibilities of all people.
