The true modernization and nationalization opportunity have been achieved by Atatürk’s principles and reforms. National culture, which shapes political and social structure in modernization and becoming a nation, has a great importance.