Following the first World War, The Mandate System became one of the most heated topics at the top of the Paris Peace Conference. As New World Order was being shaped at the time by means of the Paris Peace Conference, The Winning Countries designated a life for defeated countries with hands tied. One of the practice of these kind of Mandate System was put in effect in Palestine. Activities carried out during the First World War or in the aftermath of it constitute primary concern of our study. This New Order 1 Yrd. Doç. Dr. SDÜ Fen-Edebiyat Fakültesi, Tarih Bölümü, kadirkasalak@sdu.edu.tr Kadir KASALAK [66] established by the winning side of the First World War maintained until particularly these days we are going through has brought nothing but blood and tears. In fact developing and newly industrializing European Countries did not only give rise to the war but also established an unjust order. The Mandate for Palestine is one of the results of this unjust New World Order. The Mandate, the Jewish immigration to Palestine and the consequences of the 1936 Riot made Britain burdened with Palestine. The Britain felt forced to discard the charge. The Second World War witnessed very important developments in respect to Palestine’s political future. The fact that Britain came out victorious from the war made it easier for Israel to be founded as a State thereby The Mandate system for Palestine came to end in 1948. Keywords: Sykes-Picot Agreement, The Mandate for Palestine, The Balfour Declaration, Mac Donald’s White Book, The British.