Taking the necessary risks for an entrepreneurial goods or service, natural resource, labor, trade etc. a production means collection and merging. This movement created by the entrepreneur is entrepreneurship. Today, entrepreneurs and entrepreneurship activities have an important place in the world and they support the entrepreneurship activities of many state citizens and contribute to the realization of many business ideas. In this study, the concept of entrepreneur and entrepreneurship, the characteristics of entrepreneurial individuals and the types of entrepreneurship are explained in detail. Social entrepreneurship, which is the type of entrepreneurship, is emphasized. Today, the traces of social entrepreneurship in which the importance of social entrepreneurship is quite big are investigated and the connections with the Ahi organization are pointed out. In this study, the connection between the existing practices and social entrepreneurship has been tried to be presented as a table by mentioning the emergence of Ahi organization, its structure, members of the organization, activities and working system. Thanks to this study, it is seen that social entrepreneurship activities, which have a very important place today and have succeeded in getting great supports, have a very important place in the past and contribute to the societies in which these activities are carried on. Keywords: entrepreneurship, social entrepreneurship