Osteoblastoma, a benign osteoblastic bone tumor, is rarely localized in the jaw. Mandibular involvement is more frequent than maxillary involvement. It is usually located at the posterior mandible and it has been observed two fold more in males compared with females. Hereby, we present here a seven-year-old female patient with left jaw pain and swelling.