In today economies, the classical price-based competitiveness has been replaced by innovation-based competitiveness. Factors that contribute competitiveness of the nations and firms have been subject to extensive research. These studies show that transformation towards innovative economy depends upon different causes has many reasons. In this article, after explaining the concept innovation, the models of innovation that evolved with in last fifty years have also been investigated.